Tourist Handbook Publicizes Our Corner of State

Etter Printing Co. of Washington has brought out the best piece of tourist promotion I have seen for our region — "Tourist Handbook of Southwest Arkansas — 1966." It is a compact and beautifully-printed production, in 56 pages measuring 4 1/4 by 7 inches — a handy pocket size. It is available at Hope Chamber of Commerce, the offices of its many advertisers, and Bill Etter's plant in Washington.

It is a truly regional handbook, covering scenic and historical topics all the way from Magnolia on the south, Camden to the east, to Camp Albert Pike and Mena's Queen Wilhelmina State Park on the north.

Albert Pike's camping grounds, Narrows Lake, and the restored Wilhelmina Hotel, are presented in fine pictures and text along with scores of other tourist attractions.

The handbook is substantially backed by advertisers from all over southwest Arkansas, and the workmanship in type and press is superb.

As the Foreword says: "Southwest Arkansas... is a composite of the Old South and the West, lying geographically between the two it is not quite a part of either. Rather, it has for a century and a half been the gateway between the two."

"First evidence of the white man here dates back to the 1500's when members of DeSoto's party penetrated this far west from Florida. A monument commemorating the expedition stands at Caddo Gap, a place which never appears on any tourist map."

But that is corrected in this handbook.

In so detailed a work it is marvelous that I can find but one small error. A cutline writer identifies a picture of "Chimney Rock" on Lake Greer (Narrows) — but pictures the wrong rock. What is shown is popularly known as "Little Chimney." The real "Chimney Rock" is the huge cliff close by. It was so-called because in the days before the Little Missouri River was dammed it rose an estimated 200 feet from the river bed — and that was a pretty accurate guess. Today the water is from 105 to 120 feet deep in front of "Big Chimney" — and it looms another 30 to 40 feet above the water. I know because I've measured the depth many times with a marine fathometer — and the needle would run off the dial at 120 feet when the lake is fairly full.

$2.3 Million for River Works

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The General Electric Co. of Pine Bluff submitted an apparent low bid of $2,375,140 Wednesday to supply generators for hydroelectric power plants at two locks and dams on the Arkansas River.

Army Engineers said five generators would be installed at the Ozark, Ark., project and three at the Webber Falls, Okla. lock and dam.

The generators are to be installed at Ozark by October 1971 and at Webbers Falls by December 1972.

Arnold Praises Cooperation

STAR CITY, Ark. (AP) — Richard Arnold of Texarkana, a Democratic candidate for 4th District congressman, praised what he called "the new era of cooperation" between private and public power in a speech here Wednesday night.

Arnold, addressing a C&L Electric Cooperative meeting, said that all sides now concede there is a rural market for electric power that private companies cannot practically serve, "and in this market the cooperatives have done a wonderful job of bringing the benefits of electricity to those who could not otherwise have had them."

Medicare to Start Today in Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The federal Medicare program started today in Arkansas with all but 23 of the state's 109 hospitals qualified for participation.

Seven hospitals received contracts from the Social Security Administration just before the program got under way.

They are the Arkansas State Hospital at Benton, Harris Hospital and Clinic at Newport, Howard County Hospital at Nashville, Pike County Memorial Hospital at Murfreesboro, Ouachita Memorial Hospital at Hot Springs, Branch General Hospital at Hope and the Verser Clinic and Hospital at Harrisburg.

Meanwhile, a hospital administrator said the Health, Education and Welfare Department had said that hospitals must assign all their patients to rooms without regard to race and can't allow a patient to transfer to another room on racial grounds.

This comes under the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which hospitals had to agree to comply with to be eligible for Medicare participation.

John Gimbrea, Baptist Medical Center administrator, said the Little Rock hospital had been assigning patients to rooms without regard to race since April 1965, but had been permitting transfers if a patient objected to sharing a room with a person of another race.

HEW will allow transfer from a semi-private to a private room.

Hope Fireman Attends a 3-Day Study

Fire Chief James Cobb reported today that Dorsey Huckabee local fire department instructor has returned from a three-day instructors' conference in Little Rock. Kenneth Stanton, Assistant Director, Western Actuarial Bureau, Chicago, Illinois, was the instructor.

Chief Cobb said this type training is beneficial in local training classes which are held twice a month for both regular & volunteer firemen.

Klan Rally at

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan is planning a rally here Friday featuring an out-of-state speaker, C. B. Green of Watson Chapel said Wednesday.

Green gave no reason for the rally and said he didn't know who the speaker was.

In recent years, KKK rallies in the area have been held outside the city limits.

Murphy Hits Opponents in Opening

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Dean Murphy said Thursday night that his opponents in the 4th District congressional race, almost to a man, would simply be a puppet on a string if elected.

Murphy hit heavily at three of his Democratic foes—Richard Arnold, Charles Honey and David Pryor — as he formally opened his campaign in a televised speech.

Murphy said he thought he could win the election without a runoff, but warned his supporters there was still a challenge ahead.

Murphy, who got 43 per cent of the vote in his 1964 race against former Rep. Oren Harris, said he had been continually campaigning since his defeat by Harris.

If an opponent is elected, he said, they could be controlled by "the Washington crowd or some fat cat politician in the district, one who wants to be the congressman but doesn't want to run himself."

He said one of his opponents whose name rhymes with "money" would be "just a stooge and yes the man for the Washington crowd."

"This opponent's only claim to fame, by his own admission," Murphy said, "is that he looks tremendously old for his age, he says because he's worked so hard, and that he has been an errand boy to a congressman and a senator, that he knows his way around Capitol Hill and has had on-the-job training."

The only claim to fame of Arnold, whom he didn't mention by name, "is that he was too rich and/or too good to go to public schools after their ninth grade and that he hadn't graduated from Harvard but from Yale too."

Murphy referred to Pryor as a man "with a chip on his shoulder." He asked why Pryor waited almost a year and a half to brag about his vote against the recently controversial judicial retirement bill.

"This young man was just voting against almost anything," Murphy said.

Elsewhere in the 4th District race, Pryor, Honey, Arnold and John Harris Jones attended a Sigma Delta Chi meeting at Little Rock. All 4th District candidates were invited to speak before the Journalism organization, but Murphy and the Lane Republican in the race, Lynn Love of Texarkana, were unable to attend.

Arnold and Honey expressed opposition earlier Thursday to a proposed interstate water compact which they said could damage the industrial future to Miller County (Texarkana).

They said they could not approve the proposed Red River Compact because one paragraph could be construed as authorizing the diversion of all water from the river below Lake Texarkana for use in Texas.

And, Pryor, in a speech at Camden during the day, said Congress should be more cautious in appropriating funds "because if federal spending gets out of control it may become necessary to increase taxes to combat inflation."

State Taxes Cost Public $253 Million

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Taxpayers in Arkansas paid $252,917,317 to the state during the last fiscal year, the state Revenue Department said Thursday.

The department said the amount was $44,088,846 more than the previous year, but $11,599,016 came through the state's withholding taxes of personal and corporation incomes of 1966. Normally, that money has been collected one year later when income taxes were paid.

The total compared to $208,508,370 collected in fiscal 1965 and $195,093,858 collected in fiscal 1964, the department said.

It said gasoline taxes collected in the last 12 months was $61,122,871, an increase of $10,939,485 over the previous year. Motor vehicle revenue totaled $22,802,719, an increase of $5,432,030.

Sales tax collections totaled $77,113,024, an increase of $6,760,000.

Warehouse Burns at Fulton

High winds struck Fulton yesterday afternoon, causing some damages and during the summer storm a large warehouse owned by Brooks Shultz caught fire and burned to the ground. It is believed to have been struck by lightning.

The wind uprooted trees in Fulton and the Kitchens home was badly damaged.

Hope sent a fire truck to Fulton to keep the blaze from spreading. Two other buildings caught fire but the blaze was put out.

Possibly the biggest loss in the Warehouse blaze was papers and records, some dating back 90 years.

Hope firemen answered two more calls yesterday, one a grass fire on Taft Street that caused no damage and the second a lawnmower blaze at 907 East 5th.

Workers Bus Overtakes, 11 Killed

OZARK, Ala. (AP) — A bus loaded with migratory workers from Orlando, Fla., crashed into an embankment nine miles north of here early today and at least 11 persons were reported killed.

The Ozark Funeral Home reported 11 dead, all Negroes, were brought to the home.

The mishap occurred about 1:30 a.m. when the bus veered off U.S. 231, went down a slope and smashed into a bank.

A four-man medical team from nearby Ft. Rucker, Ala., helped care for the injured.

The vehicle was an old school bus.

Dale County Coroner Harold Dick said the bus was loaded with about 30 men, women and children headed for Missouri to work in the corn fields.

LBJ Serves Notice U.S. in to Stay

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Johnson has served notice on Hanoi that the United States is in Viet Nam to stay — until an honorable peace can be negotiated.

And as long as Communist leaders refuse to talk peace, Johnson warned, U.S. air raids will continue in North Viet Nam.

"Let me be absolutely clear," the President told a $100-a-plate Democratic dinner Thursday night. "I want the leaders of North Viet Nam to know exactly where we stand."

"We would rather reason than fight," he said. "We are using our power in Viet Nam because the Communists have given us no other choice."

Johnson climaxed a fast-paced tour Thursday of Nebraska and Iowa — a trip with heavy political overtones — by asserting that this country has never run from its duty nor dipped out on an ally and does not intend to start now.

Vowing that as long as he is President "we will stand firm," Johnson said as long as the North Vietnamese "persist in their aggression against South Viet Nam, we will resist their aggression."

"As long as they carry on the war, we will persevere. They cannot wear us down. And they cannot escape paying a very high price for their aggression."

If the North Vietnamese lead where they would like to know when and where they would like to ask us directly what can be done to bring peace to South Viet Nam," Johnson said. "I will have my closest and most trusted associates there in a matter of hours."

"There need be no agenda," the President added. "There need be no previous understanding of what will and will not be discussed. There need be no commitments on either side. There need only be a room and a table and people willing to talk respectfully."

"This is the one way to stop the fighting," Johnson said. "It is one way to end the killing in the South and the bombing in the North."

In other Viet Nam developments Thursday:

The United States told the U.N. Security Council of the bombings of the oil facilities near Hanoi and Haiphong and said the attacks were necessary to slow down Red military infiltration.

U.N. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg again repeated the U.S. proposal that the Geneva conference be reconvened "to reaffirm and revitalize the Geneva agreement of 1954 and 1962."

BOVINA, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Jack Simpkins of Marshall, Ark., was killed Wednesday in a car-truck collision on U.S. 60, north of Bovina in the Texas Panhandle.

Her husband was reported in serious condition at a Friona hospital, but a passenger in the car, Ricky Woody, was not injured.

NATO Going on Without the French

PARIS (AP) — Business as usual—as much as possible—was the word today as France quit the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military commands.

President Charles de Gaulle withdrew slightly more than 2,000 officers and enlisted men from integrated Allied military command posts. France also declared that as of today its 72,000 troops in West Germany are no longer controlled by NATO.

The French withdrawal from NATO military headquarters here and elsewhere in Europe was conducted discreetly. The French flag still flew alongside the flags of the other NATO nations outside the Allied command post near Paris. De Gaulle says France remains a part of the North Atlantic Alliance although French troops are no longer under its command.

Adjusting to the new situation, officers at the NATO command posts continued their planning for joint military action to defend Europe in case of attack. But their work was complicated by uncertainty over what they could expect of France in case of an attack.

France's previous contribution to the European shield, available for immediate retaliation, was the two divisions and two tactical air force squadrons she has had stationed in West Germany. The West German and French governments are now negotiating on the future status of those forces.

As part of De Gaulle's plan to pull France out of the military side of the 17-year-old alliance, he has also ordered all Allied headquarters and foreign bases to get off French soil by next April.

The move will involve about 28,000 U.S. troops at NATO headquarters and U.S. bases. An advance contingent of Americans began evacuating the base at Evreux Thursday in three C130 transports for a new home in England.

The United States withdrew jointly controlled tactical nuclear weapons that previously were at the disposal of French air force units in Germany. The United States had warned earlier that these weapons would be taken back if France left NATO's military arm.

Another Fuel Depot Hit by Bombers

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. pilots smashed another North Vietnamese fuel depot today as they continued the air campaign to keep fuel from the tanks of trucks hauling men and supplies to the Communists in South Viet Nam.

A U.S. spokesman said Navy pilots put all their bombs "right on the target area" in an attack on the Dong Nham storage depot 15 miles northwest of Haiphong. He said it contained an estimated 14,000 metric tons of fuel.

On the ground, American infantrymen pushed a badly battered Viet Cong unit back toward the Cambodian border after an ambush that backfired on the enemy 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

A U.S. spokesman said American counterattacks, artillery barrages and air assaults killed nearly 300 of the enemy in the An Loc area. By late afternoon contact was broken and the 271st Viet Cong regiment was reported streaming toward its Cambodian haven a short distance away.

Three U.S. fighter-bombers accidentally jettisoned antipersonnel cluster bombs on a Vietnamese village today, killing five Vietnamese civilians and wounding 41, a U.S. spokesman announced.

The spokesman said American helicopters rushed the wounded to hospitals. The three F100 Supersabre jets were returning to the Bien Hoa base 15 miles north of Saigon after a strike. The spokesman said following normal practice they attempted to jettison their unused bombs in a dumping area set aside for this purpose but the bombs did not drop until after they pulled away from the area.

Today was the eighth day of raids in the past two weeks on fuel storage facilities in North Viet Nam. Since June 3, attacks have been made on about 14 different such storage sites in North Viet Nam, particularly around Hanoi.

Despite considerable adverse international reaction to the bombings on the doorstep of Hanoi and Haiphong Wednesday, the United States went ahead with its campaign to reduce the flow of aid to the Viet Cong in the South. The spokesman said the Skyhawks, Phantoms and Intruders from the carrier Constellation left a column of black smoke rising high into the sky from the Dong Nham fuel depot.

During another attack, over the North Vietnamese Panhandle north of the 17th Parallel, enemy fire shot down an Air Force F105 Thunderchief. The pilot bailed out into the Gulf of Tonkin northwest of Dong Hoi, and a rescue helicopter picked him up 40 minutes later.

It was the 273rd American plane reported lost over North Viet Nam.

Embezzler of $2 Million Out of Jail

ALDERSON, W. Va. (AP)—Mrs. Burnice Geiger, released on parole today after serving five years for embezzling $2.1 million from her father's bank in Sheldon, Iowa, said she had "no definite plans" except to settle someplace in Iowa. She would not disclose exactly where she plans to live but said she did not intend to return permanently to Sheldon, where her huge embezzlement caused the Sheldon National National Bank to fail. Good behavior reduced her reformatory term by two days for every day served of her 15-year-sentence. "I feel lovely," the 64-year-old widow replied to a newsman who told her she looked lovely. She said she "learned something every day" during her term in the Federal Reformatory for Women, a tree-shaded preserve which resembles a girls school more than it does a penal institution. No friends or family were present for her release, but she said she hadn't expected any. Mrs. Geiger has no children. Her husband died shortly after she went to prison. She said she had no visitors during her five years in the reformatory but corresponded regularly with her parents in Sheldon. Her father is now 89 and her mother is 84. For 30 years in Sheldon Mrs. Geiger lavished money on a home, business, stocks, expensive clothes and donations to charity.

Government Starts Year Still in Red

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
WASHINGTON (AP)—The government begins a new fiscal year today with one segment of Congress and the Johnson administration still at odds over whether it will end in red or black ink. All agree that fiscal 1966, which ended Thursday, rolled into the red — the only difference of opinion is by how much. Estimates range from $2.5 billion to $2.9 billion. For the new year the administration is sticking with its earlier estimate that spending will outstrip net tax receipts by $1.8 billion.

But a source on the Senate House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation said the fiscal 1966 deficit should be close to the $2.5 billion the committee had predicted earlier in the year. The Treasury Department still estimates last year's deficit at between $3.4 billion and $3.9 billion, but one government source said it could drop below $3 billion — which would make it the lowest deficit in six years. At issue, in both the old and new fiscal years, is the amount of taxes the government collects.

Exact figures for the last fiscal year won't be fully tabulated for another three weeks but it's already certain the government ended the year in far better shape financially than the administration anticipated six months ago.

Last January, the deficit was estimated at $6.4 billion based on spending of $106.4 billion — the first spending program in history of more than $100 billion — and net tax receipts of $100 billion. The government ran a $1.2-billion surplus during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1960, but since then deficits have ranged from $3.4 billion to $8.2 billion.

Higher than expected tax collections and more frequent tax deposits by corporations of money withheld from paychecks prompted the better than anticipated showing during the past year. Large corporations must now deposit withheld taxes with the Treasury twice monthly instead of once. This began during June and resulted in an added $1 billion in tax receipts during the month.

Generally, economists say the booming economy with its relatively low unemployment rate and larger paychecks spurred the over-all increase in tax collections.

These factors, the Treasury said, should raise net tax receipts to $102.5 billion or possibly to $103 billion for the fiscal year just ended. The House-Senate tax committee estimates $103.9 billion.

For the new fiscal year, the Treasury estimated net receipts at $111 billion and the committee staff at $118.2 billion. Spending is estimated by the administration at $112.8 billion.

River Group Gets Go-Ahead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department gave its go-ahead Wednesday to the eight county Arkansas River Valley Resource Conservation and Development project. Counties in the project are Crawford, Franklin, Johnson, Logan, Pope, Scott, Sebastian and Yell. The Department told Rep. James Trimble, D-Ark., that there would be individual programs within the overall project, and that funds would be granted when the individual projects were approved.

Among the individual projects are accelerated watershed improvement, conservation protection, multiple-use water systems for municipal and industrial use and expanded and improved recreation areas and facilities.

Middle Age Isn't So Very Dreadful

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—What is middle age?

To many it is the longest, darkest tunnel of life, a barren stretch between first and second childhood.

They think of it as a time enjoyable only to those who take a masochistic delight in acquiring an ulcer or watching their hair turn gray or fall out.

Actually, of course, it isn't all that dreadful. It's more like swimming in a cold lake—shocking to the system at first, but not too bad after you get used to it.

Middle age, like smoking, is habit-forming. Once you get the habit, you find it hard to shake. What can you give it up for that is better?

An odd thing about being middle-aged is that you notice it in others before you do yourself. But make no mistake about it, man, you're in the silver years if —

You like Elvis Presley better than the Beatles because he wears a more snisble hair cut. You can remember when Shirley Temple wore curls.

In your wardrobe there is still at least one double-breasted suit with wide lapels. You realize you need new glasses but insist you're not ready for bifocals.

On a picnic you'd rather eat watermelon with a fork than pick it up in both hands. You buy executive-length socks now because anklets make you feel sloppy.

The waiters at your favorite restaurant never have to ask what you want for lunch. They automatically bring you what they know you're supposed to have.

You hesitate to acquire any new disorders because there isn't room in your medicine cabinet for any more pills. If a strange girl winks at you on the bus, you wonder if she's got a clinker in her eye.

Every time you hear a band play "September Song" you feel haunted the rest of the evening. Everything teenagers do today seems to you illegal, immoral or unnecessary.

When lured out on a dance floor, you start to put your arm around your partner's waist instead of waving your hands wildly and stomping around like an Indian on the warpath.

You brood more about your pension than the possibility of promotion. You can read a column like this with a smile — instead of silently blubbering inside.

More Frequent Questions on Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) Here are answers to some of the questions most frequently asked about medicare, starting today for all Americans 65 and older:

Q. If the hospital I choose is overcrowded, does medicare guarantee me a bed?

A. No. Medicare just helps pay the bill.

Q. If I have to go back into the hospital two or more times, do I pay the $40 deductible each time?

A. No. You pay just the first $40 of hospital charges in each "spell of illness."

Q. What's a "spell of illness?"

A. To medicare it's a period of time, not an ailment. It starts the day you enter a hospital. It ends 60 days after your discharge from the hospital. Or from a nursing home — after next Jan. 1, medicare will provide posthospital convalescent care in nursing homes for those needing it.

Q. Suppose I go back to the hospital for a different sickness?

A. To medicare it doesn't matter. It's all one "spell of illness" if the new admission comes within 60 days of the last discharge.

Q. Do I have to go back to the same hospital?

A. No. Your benefits follow you from hospital to hospital and from city to city. Just show your red, white and blue card. Any participating hospital can tell instantly, by check to a computer in Baltimore, Md., whether you have used up all your "benefit days."

Q. If I'm in a hospital when medicare starts, does medicare pick up the bill?

A. Not for past days. Medicare picks up as of July 1, and you'll still have to pay the $40 deductible as well as the charges for the days preceding medicare.

Q. I've signed up to pay $3 a month for the voluntary doctor bill insurance. It has a $50 deductible; how often do I have to pay that?

A. Just once each year, regardless of how much your doctor bills add up to in a year.

Q. Should I cancel my old health insurance policy?

A. If you are 65 but your wife is not, she's not covered by medicare.

icare. You may want to keep her policy in force.

Q. We are both over 65. Should we buy the "supplemental" plans offered to over-65 persons by Blue Cross, Blue Shield and other private insurers for additional protection?

A. That depends on your own needs and inclinations. Some policies are designed to cover medicare's "deductibles" and provide benefits beyond the limits of medicare. Another type of policy pays off in cash benefits for each day of hospitalization; the money could be used for the inevitable costs of an illness, or for "extras," such as a bedside telephone or a private room instead of the semiprivate accommodations paid for by medicare.

Q. Medicare's doctor bill insurance covers 80 per cent of a doctor's "reasonable charges," after he $50 deductible. Does the doctor send his bill to medicare or to me?

A. Either one. He can send it to medicare's local "intermediary" agency — in most cities, the local Blue Shield organization — which will pay him 80 per cent of what it deems a "reasonable charge" for his treatment or operation; the other 20 per cent would come from you. Or he could send the whole bill directly to you.

Q. In the latter case what do I do?

A. Pay it, then apply for reimbursement to the "intermediary."

Strong-Woodson Vows
The First Methodist Church of Hope was the setting of the wedding of Miss Carolyn Strong daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Webb Strong Jr., to Alfred Richard Woodson III son of Mrs. Thurman S. Kimbro of Conroe, Texas, and the late Alfred Richard Woodson Jr., at 6:30 p.m. June 25.

The double-ring ceremony performed by the Rev. R. B. Moore Jr., was solemnized before an altar decorated with a fan-shaped arrangement of votive candles, lemon leaf and huckleberry vine. Tall white tapers in seven branched candelabra were used, and a prie Dieu flanked by spiral candelabra and baskets of pale yellow gladioli and white stocks completed the setting.

Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, organist, gave a program of nuptial music and accompanied Samuel Meeks Strong, soloist, brother of the bride, as he sang "Because" and "The Gifts Demanded". The latter selection, set to the words of a poem by John Gould Fletcher, was composed by Mrs. Hyatt and dedicated to Miss Strong.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floorlength gown of peau de soie trimmed with Alencon lace and seed pearls, designed with a Sabrina neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The chapel train was caught at the waistline with tiny bows. Her fingertip veil was held by a tiara of seed threaded orchid.

Mrs. John Robert Carter of Houston, Texas, served the bride as matron-of-honor and her other attendants included: Mrs. Hulin Fowler of Abilene, Texas; Mrs. Lawrence E. Jones of Pine Bluff; and Miss Caroline Cox of Hope. They wore full-length empire-style gowns of pale yellow chiton with floating panel on back and a wide satin bow. They carried old-fashioned nosegays of summer flowers and pale satin ribbon.

The ring bearer was Thomas Edward Hays, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Hays Jr.

Mr. Turman S. Kimbro served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were: Edward Gregg Wallace, Houston, Texas; Hulin Fowler, Abilene, Texas; and Robert A. Meadows, Dallas, Texas. The ushers were: Lee Alworth and Paul Watkins, of Conroe, Texas; and John Robert Carter and Judson Trout, Houston, Texas.

The mother of the bride wore a mauve pink dress with matching accessories. The mother of the groom was dressed in pale yellow. Each wore an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Webb Strong, Jr. held a garden reception at their home honoring the bride and groom. Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Brents McPherson and were introduced to the receiving line composed of the wedding party members of the couple, and grandmothers Mrs. Sam W. Strong of Arkadelphia and Mrs. Gertrude Kimbro of Conroe, Texas.

Miss Judy Jones of Arkadelphia presided over the guest book in the family room. An arrangement of yellow mums graced the table where guests signed. Magnolias were used on the mantle flanked by bronze candelabra holding ivory candles. White and yellow mums were used at other vantage points. Guests were ushered into the serving area on the patio where a table, covered with a floor-length cloth of white net decorated with green velvet bows, held a silver punch bowl, epergne and five-branched candelabra. In the center was a striking arrangement of white stocks and majestic daisies with tall, pale yellow tapers. Cake, mints and punch were served by Mrs. Wilma Jones and Miss Jean Green of Arkadelphia and Mrs. Fred Ellis and Mrs. Thomas E. Hays, Sr. of Hope.

Chocolate cake and champagne punch were served at groom's table where a floral arrangement in the yellow and white theme was also carried out. A serving cart held baskets holding with yellow satin bows holding rice bags of yellow tulle.

Others in the house party dispensing hospitality were Mrs. J. W. Franks, Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. W. A. Williams, all of Hope; David Norwood of Houston; Mrs. Lee Alworth, Mrs. Paul Watkins, and Mrs. Seth Dorbandt, all of Conroe, Texas.

For going away the bride wore a beige linen two-piece dress trimmed with brown braid. Matching accessories were of bone, and she pinned an orchid at her shoulder.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco and Mexico City, the couple will reside in Houston, Tex.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Turman Kimbro, Mrs. Gertrude Kimbro, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Dobandt, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Alworth, Conroe, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Hulin Fowler, Abilene, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. William Kimbro, Miss Katherine Kimbro, Mr. and Mrs. David Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Wallace, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, Judson Trout, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meadows, Dallas; Mrs. Sam W. Strong, Sr., Dr. Jim Ed Strong, Mrs. Wilma Jones, Miss Judy Jones, Miss Amy Jean Green, Arkadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davidson, Gurdon; Mr. and Mrs. Sanders Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Strawn, Jr., Little Rock; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kendrick Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Oats, Cooper, Tex.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Enter Laughing," and with a brand-new smile: Reni Santoni. Who is Reni Santoni? He is a young New York comedian who is playing the lead in "Enter Laughing," a fictionalized version of Carl Reiner's advent into show business.

What's this about the new smile?

"My teeth," he points out, exposing them happily. "They're new. Cost me thirty-five hundred dollars. Like them? You'd better."

I liked them. So does Reni (short for Renaldo). He smiles often and the effect is beguiling. "This is something new for me," he admitted. "I never used to smile much. Or if I did, I'd smile on one side of my mouth, because my teeth were crooked on the other side. Now it's different. I'm so happy about it that I think there should be screen credit: 'Mr. Santoni's teeth by'."

Orthodontist's gift to Hollywood has reason to smile these days. He is starring in his first film with a cast that includes Jose Ferrer, Shelley Winters, Elaine May, Jack Gifford and Janet Margolin. All this because the producer's wife happened to be watching television.

The producer is Joseph Stein, who authored the play "Enter Laughing" from Reiner's novel. "One night my wife was watching the Merv Griffin show on TV," Stein recalled. "She said, 'Come look at this kid — he might be just the one for 'Enter Laughing.' I was somewhat irritated because I was reading the newspaper, but I looked. She was right."

Stein was in northern California and when he got back, he saw Reni and "I could see the possibilities."

"But he needed some alterations," Stein said. "His hair was very dark and he wore it over his forehead. He had to lighten it and comb it back. And the teeth. Obviously he needed new teeth."

Like many a Hollywood star, Reni had his teeth capped. His new appearance, his natural ebullience and youthful appearance — he's 27 but can pass for 18, as required in the script — won him the role.

NEW YORK (AP) — At the beginning of a period when a lot of people go on vacations, CBS Tuesday night presented an amusing, hour about a fascinating, off-beat subject — the places they will stay.

"Essay on Hotels" started with a brief history of lodging places. The first real hotel in America was in Washington in 1793. By the 1880s the "luxury palaces" like Boston's Copley Plaza, New York's Plaza and Denver's Brown Palace were going up.

Then there was the era of the great resort hotels, and few of them remain today. In fact, on the site of the famed Grand Union of Saratoga there stands now a supermarket with the same name. Going, if not gone, too, are the smaller hotels and inns that featured front porches with an ocean view — and rocking chairs.

But now, says the producer-writer, Andrew A. Rooney, the big downtown hotels are in trouble and many are coming down to make room for office space. And motels, by that r any other name, are increasing along with the increase of automobile and plane traffic. They are popping up along all the mainroads and at the airports and are even invading the cities, called "high rise motels."

Rooney bowed to San Francisco as "maybe the best hotel town in the world," and skipped over the neon-lighted spots of Cane Canaveral and Las Vegas.

We were also given a glimpse of life in a $1 a night Bowery flophouse. And then there were some enlightening interviews with he help in some of the big city hotels.

For instance, men who smoke pipes and who wear brown shoes are pegged by some veteran New York bellhops as poor tipsters. Some hotel maids would rather clean up for male guests than women, who they said are "messier" — except when the man has had a party in his room.

This viewer, a hotel fan since first reading Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace" and Ludwig Bemelmam's books on inn-keeping found it to be a delightful hour.

Stalin Piker Alongside of China's Mao

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Joseph Stalin, in the words of his idolaters, may have been "the genius leader of all mankind," but he was a piker alongside Mao Tse-tung when it came to thinking.

Mao's thinking, to cite just an Chinese Communist assessment, is "the greatest truth since time immemorial."

The Chinese Communists, who like to make great leaps forward, took a big jump in the past year in the field of the personality cult. Their performance promises to put Stalin's cult to shame.

Stalin was called: "Great leader and teacher and invincible fighter for all mankind." "Father of all mankind." "Leader of the great army of struggle for the cause of peace and socialism."

On his 70th birthday in December 1949, while Communists around the world lavished adoration upon him, Pravda said of him: "The celebration of comrade J.V. Stalin's birthday was a mighty demonstration of the devotion and love of the Soviet peoples and the working people of the whole world for the leader and teacher of all mankind, the inspirer and organizer of the victory of communism."

Now it's Mao's turn. But there is one curious thing about the Mao cult which sets it apart from Stalin's. Although some time ago the obeisance often was to Mao himself, now it is invariably to his "thinking."

It is Mao's body that has been scratched away, leaving a legacy to be administered by some sort of collective leadership.

Chairman Mao is the red sun in our hearts, the party press would say in the past. Chairman Mao is the brilliant sunlight in our minds.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

Father May Remember His Youth

Dear Helen: Our house is always full of teenagers. It's the gathering place, I guess, because they know they are accepted here though expected to behave. They aren't angels but they're fine kids, and they have a terrific time on pizzas and pop. Sometimes they stay late, when our daughters plan a party, and I'm not in the habit of riding herd because I figure they know when they are expected home. My husband and I are always on hand, however. No lights out stuff here.

That's why I was so shocked the other night when the father of a 19-year-old fellow called and accused me of "contributing to the delinquency of a minor" because he was drinking plain cola at our house at 2 a. m. After all, the boy is old enough to fight for his country, so I figured he was old enough to be a chaperoned Saturday night party. The man went on and on, and the boy was terribly embarrassed. The father seemed to think anyone who gave teenage parties gave orgies, and God would punish us.

Am I due an apology? — Mother Goose

Dear Mother Goose: You certainly are due an apology, but I doubt that you'll get one. Perhaps this father remembers his Youth with foreboding. It takes one to suspect one. Or else he only sees what he reads in the "teen exposés."

P.S. Don't take a minor tirade too hard. Read below and learn how an expert chops down a columnist.

Miss Bottel: I don't know whether you are a Miss or Mrs., but I presume you are a Miss for you sound like a carnal-minded old maid or you could be a Devil-devised Mrs.

You say you will apologize "No Name" on one condition, that she give you one valid reason why shaving the legs and wearing go-go-boots is disgraceful. Maybe she can't express herself on this disgusting subject that I will give you plenty of reasons why you should get down on your knees and pray forgiveness for leading the world astray.

N.N. called teens the "brats to today," and you said, "Hogwash — they are smarter, neater, more idealistic, more involved and better all around citizens than our generation." N.N. speaks the truth. You, Miss Bottel, with your carnal, Devil-inspired mind full of blue mud, speak lies!

Smarter: Yes, smart Alex's.

who don't know the teachings of God.
Nearer? Hair tringing in their eyes, looking like ignorant cave men and women. God never meant for men to wear long hair. Government authorities who allow this Beatie idioy should be led out to the whipping post and flogged with a cat-o-nine-tails.

It is them, irresponsible parents, and dummies like you that caused this young generation to go to the dogs and Hell and destruction on a greased board.

Idealistic and involved? Involved in ideals of the Devil! Raps, murder, killing their parents, crazy nuts demonstration, hoodlums, law breakers, no respect for decency.

Better citizens? In schools they are taught "evolution" by idiots inspired by Communists and the Devil.
Now, immediately apologize to "No Name" or you will have no excuse when you stand in Judgment, and will burn forevermore. If this is not enough valid reason, I don't know what kind of mixed-up mind you have.
— One of God's Children (no name and address).

Dear One: Sorry dear. In seven pages of vitriol you never once got back to why a 15-year-old girl can't shave her legs and wear go-go boots.

It was a valiant try, but you will have to get more specific on the reasons these two little matters are "disgraceful," before I make a public apology.

—H.

NOTE TO READERS: This rather pitiful letter isn't printed to make you laugh but rather to shake you up.

Though so extreme it is ludicrous, it points up a dangerous trend: too many people are reading too many exposés. They're judging the world by what is written about it, instead of taking a hard-nosed personal survey to prove what should be obvious: most of us are good, decent citizens doing the best we can to stay that way.

If doom-cryers will top view-judging themselves and their few cohorts as the lonehoudout, they might forget their fears long enough to get on with building that "great Society." —H.

Ralston Is Loser at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Manuel Santana, the deft Spaniard who is the United States champion, defeated Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., in straight sets today for the singles title in the All-England tennis title, 6-4, 1-9, 6-4.

The match lasted one hour, 40 minutes and was easily the best final seen here in many years. Santana was seeded fourth. Ralston, the U.S. No. 1, was the sixth seed this year.

The center court was packed with 15,000 for the match in which Santana was the first European to play in the best of five finals since 1955.

A great roar went up from the fans packed in the steamy heat of the center court, most famed tennis court in the world, as Santana triumphed.

The Spaniard's sunny, happy-go-lucky nature has made him a firm favorite with the Wimbledon crowds, and the fans roared again as he received the massive silver championship trophy from Princess Marina, the queen's aunt, who is president of the Wimbledon Club.

For Ralston 23 and five years younger than Santana, the result was stark tragedy.

He has been criticized in the past for his temperamental but throughout Wimbledon this year he has kept this sternly under control and played the final with grace and power.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — United States tennis star Dennis Ralston faced Manuel Santana of Spain for the Wimbledon championship today — and knew that all the crowd's sympathies would be for his opponent.

Santana is a big favorite with the British fans and the first European to reach the men's final at Wimbledon in 11 years. "It's understandable, and it doesn't worry me at all," said Ralston, 23-year-old star from Bakersfield, Calif.

"Of course they want to see a European win the title. Besides, I read in the papers that Santana is a colorful player."

"I'm not. I'm the dour type." Ralston's match was the first installment of America's bid for the big Wimbledon double. Billie Jean Moffitt King of Long Beach, Calif., plays Maria Bueno of Brazil in the women's final Saturday.

The last time both titles went to the United States was in 1955, when Tony Trabert won the men's crown and Louise Brough the women's.

Santana, 28, saw his progress to the final as much more than a personal triumph.

"I am nothing," he said. "But I am happy that Europe is in the final. It is a good thing for European tennis that I have been able to do this."

Ralston, whose form has been building up steadily since the tournament started 11 days ago, said he was thankful for a tough passage to the final. On the way he won four-setters against Bob Lutz of San Francisco, Aleksander Metreveli of Russia, Keith Dierpram of South Africa and Pierre Darmon of France.

Finally, two days ago, he overcame Cliff Drysdale of Africa in a five-setter that lasted nearly three hours.

"That's the ideal preparation for the final," Ralston said. Mrs. King downed her old rival, Margaret Smith of Australia, 6-3, 6-3 in the women's semifinals Thursday with a brilliant display of volleying.

Miss Bueno overcame the last British hope, Mrs. Ann Jones, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

Miss Smith has won the title twice and was the defending champion. Miss Bueno has been champion three times, in 1959, 1960 and 1964.

Ralston and Mrs. King are partners in the mixed doubles and have reached the semifinals.

Alou Extends Hit Streak to 13 Games

By MURRAY CHASS

Associated Press Sports Writer
Matty Alou has lost his pull, but he's pushed himself to the front of the National League batting race.

Alou extended his hitting streak to 13 straight games Thursday night, rapping three hits as the Pittsburgh Pirates walloped Houston 9-0 for their fifth consecutive victory.

Alou's performance shot his average up six points to .328 and gave him the batting lead over teammates Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell, who are hitting .326.

Such a hitting height is rare for the 27-year-old center fielder, whose lifetime average is a mere .260. But there are two reasons for his dramatic change.

First, he's playing regularly, something he never did in his first six seasons in the majors with San Francisco. Second, Harry Walker is his manager. Walker grabbed hold of Alou when spring training started and convinced him to stop trying to pull every pitch to right field.

"Try it my way," Walker told and see how easy it is when you the left-handed hitter. "Try it get the feel of it. You don't have the power to become a pull hitter, and you'll lose hits trying. The wind blowing to right field at Candlestick Park spoiled you."

Alou unspooled himself and started pushing the ball to left. That's when he started pushing his average up, too.

In the only other NL game, San Francisco defeated Atlanta 3-1 and Philadelphia edged New York 1-0.

In the American League, Baltimore crushed Kansas City 11-3, Cleveland blanked Minnesota 4-0 and Boston edged New York 3-2.

Alou singled to left field in the first inning and scored the only run. Vernon Law needed in his six-hit shutout. Gee Alley and Jim Pagliaroni each drove in two Pirate runs while Stargell, Bill Mazeroski and Donn Clendenon had two hits a piece.

San Francisco's Gaylord Perry scattered seven hits and struck out 12, gaining his 11th victory against only one defeat. Jim Hart brought San Francisco the victory with a two-run homer in the fourth inning.

Felipe Alou, Matty's brother, had three hits for Atlanta, giving him 101 for the season and making him the first in the majors to reach 100.

Dick Groat singled in a run with the bases loaded in the second inning, giving Philadelphia its second 1-0 victory over New York in three days.

Chris Short stopped the Mets on six hits and struck out 13. He outdueled Bob Shaw, who was seeking his fifth victory in as many starts since the Mets acquired him from San Francisco.

Fillies and Mares in Top Racing Roles

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
Fillies and mares will play a major role in Saturday's thoroughbred racing program and have a dominant part in an even richer card on July 4 with more than one-half million dollars up for grabs in the top events at major tracks on the two days.

Saturday's national card is headed by three races for members of the distaff divisions — the $50,000-added Vanity at Hollywood Park, the $35,000-added Molly Pitcher at Monmouth Park and the $30,000-added Misty Isle, limited to 3-year-olds, at Arlington Park.

Three-year-old fillies also will be seen in action Monday in the $50,000-added Monmouth Oaks at Monmouth Park. But richest of the July 4 headliners will be the $100,000-added Suburban Handicap at Aqueduct in which Bold Lad will carry 135 pounds while attempting to wrap up the second leg of New York's Handicap Triple Crown. The Wheatley Stable ace won the Metropolitan on May 30 in his first major comeback race after winning the 2-year-old title in 1964.

At Hollywood Park, where Native Diver is expected to go after his 28th stakes victory in the American Cap Monday, 11 fillies are in line for the 1 1/4 miles of the Vanity.

Poona Queen, Wiltshire Handicap winner, is top weight under 120 pounds, eight more than has been assigned to last year's winner, Jalousie II.

Tosmah, who ran second as Hedevar matched the then world record for a mile in the Equipoise at Arlington Park, is set to carry 127 pounds in the 1-1/16 miles of the Molly Pitcher. She'll give from 10-16 pounds to nine expected rivals including Wheatley Stable's speedy Discipline.

The Misty Isle, at 1-1/16 miles, is expected to attract 12 with Neat N Sweet packing the heaviest impost of 121 pounds.

"I am sure the Viet Cong are staying awake nights trying to use their forces to gain a dramatic victory," he said, "but U.S. forces are astride of their supply lines. Now, if they fight us they will be defeated. And as an army they can't continue without a victory. They've become a conservative."

Despite his confidence and optimism, DePuy is plagued by the shortage of Army helicopters in this "chopper" war, as is every other allied commander.

"The critical shortage is in the medium sized Chinooks — to move troops, artillery and supplies," he said, "but we've learned to live with less."

Troops More Aggressive Than Training

By ROBERT D. OHMAN

QUAN LOI, South Viet Nam (AP) — Maj. Gen. William E. DePuy nodded as he spoke of the young soldiers serving in the U.S. 1st Infantry Division.

"They are magnificent. I believe it's the first time the Army has had troops who are more aggressive than their training permits. Our problem is to give them more training so they won't be killed because of their willingness to fight."

DePuy is a close man with words, and he thought briefly before continuing:

"They will go, these young men. Take 10 of them — they'll charge right into the enemy. It is a tremendous responsibility for our officers to command these men."

DePuy, a North Dakotan nicknamed "Peppy DePuy" — pronounced de pew — by the men of the "Big Red One" division, is spoiling for a fight.

Last week, as if taunting the reluctant Viet Cong, DePuy spread his division over 100 square miles in the jungles and rice paddies just north of Saigon. As the seeker in a deadly game of hide-and-seek, DPuy had troops of one or two-battalion strength in 12 different locations, moving them like pawns on a chessboard.

"We're looking for them, we want to fight them, we have never been deployed more broadly," DePuy said.

Referring to the Viet Cong, he added: "They can't attack all 12 places at once. And we have the mobility to react in any emergency."

Although the 1st Division troops have encountered, only small guerrilla units so far during their current operation, El Paso II, DePuy anticipates "some bloody battles this summer."

DePuy also is confident that any momentum the Communist forces may have built up before the massive commitment of U.S. troops last year has been shattered.

HE'S BACK—Charles DePuy, manager of the Detroit Tigers, happily donned a cap as he returned to watch his team play in Los Angeles, his first game since his heart attack.

Low Pressure Areas May Hurt Business
By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Some low-pressure economic areas could affect the business weather in the second half of 1966. But high - pressure areas built up over the last five and a half years are still most likely to set the economic climate for some months to come.
Depressed areas the experts watch are housing, the stock market, auto sales uncertainty, credit squeeze on consumers and business firms, higher interest rates, growing wage demands, worsening balance of payments deficits and, above all, the spreading effect of a costlier Viet Nam War—both in money and manpower—on the civilian economy.
These could moderate the pace of the economy the rest of this year. But the momentum built up in major segments is still so strong that most economists, in government or in business, see the general trend still upward with many new records all but assured by year's end.
The strong points are:
—Defense spending upturn which will be increasingly translated into new orders, heavier production and more jobs and paychecks.
—High and rising employment. This means larger totals of personal incomes and corporate revenues. This all but guarantees more consumer spending by year-end, and further ordering of materials and machinery.
—Business expansion plans. These call for more spending in the last six months of 1966 than in the like period of 1965. Neither the credit squeeze, labor shortages, materials scarcities nor government restraints seem likely to modify the total spending by very much.
Thus all three props of the economy—consumer, business and government spending — should be sturdy.
Caution has come back into style, however, after the speculative exuberance of the early months of the year. Jitters in the stock markets affect the attitude of many citizens who do no trading at all. Consumers also are worried by the chance of a tax increase, by the pinch of a rising cost of living, by the credit pinch when they engage in the great American pastime of buying on the cuff.

How the 1967 model autos will catch on also will have a wide psychological repercussion. Public confidence has close links to auto industry trends.
Some business leaders are fearful that the big climb in profits may be over, or nearly so. Profits may be squeezed, both by the government's frowns on price increases and by growing labor demands that could raise production costs. other storm centers they watch are the government's attitude toward mergers, its stepped-up antitrust drive, and a possible tax increase.
Whether consumer demand is reaching a saturation point in some fields is debatable. Caution, or shaken confidence, could delay some buying, but most consumers seem bent on raising their living standards still higher—if they can get the necessary credit.
The only hope, steelmen concluded, lay in technological advances — new ways to produce better steel cheaper.
The industry channeled billions of dollars into capital expenditures to revamp the steel-making process. The revolution touched every part of the industry — from the mines to the mills.
Probably the most significant innovation was the basic oxygen furnace, developed in Europe years ago but long ignored by American producers.
Today, basic oxygen furnaces rapidly are replacing the old open hearths. By injecting oxygen at tremendous pressure into the furnace, steel can be produced in 40 minutes instead of the six to 10 hours in the open hearth.
With changes in production methods went development of new products and new markets to combat inroads on steel markets made by plastics, aluminum and concrete.
As an example, U.S. Steel Corp., the No. 1 producer, alone is investigating 1,300 basic and applied research projects ranging from the development of superstrength steels for deep sea research to the best application of steel for service station canopies.
"From raw materials to finished products — from the heart of the iron atom to surface coatings — the search is unrelenting," says U.S. Steel President Leslie B. Worthington.
In 1964, the industry set records in domestic consumption, shipments, production and capital spending.
Records were again set last year. But labor costs spiraled and steel imports poured into the country at a record clip.
Profits failed to keep pace despite the record $13 billion spent on new plans and equipment between 1955 and 1965.
Since 1957, the industry's profit margin fell from 17th to 37th among the 40 leading manufacturing industries. The mills aren't losing money, but steelmen complain profit returns are low compared to heavy investments.
"Profit margins are far from being satisfactory," says one Pittsburgh-based steelmaker. "We've got to show a profit to the stockholders whose money we're using."
Steelmen say there are three ways to boost profits — increase production, increase prices or implement technology.
Most mills already are operating at or near capacity.
Prices? A touchy matter for steelmen, still smarting from the Kennedy rollback and mindful of President Johnson's wage-price guidelines.
Recent price adjustments on certain products rather than on all products drew no comment from the government, and more adjustments can be expected.
Views of steel executive are widely divergent.
Some say price hikes are needed. Others argue that prices should remain firm to meet competition from lower-priced imports which are expected to exceed nine million tons this year.
The question then remains — can the industry afford to wait on new plants, equipment and research to pay off?
"What other choice do we have," answers one top producer.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG
If You Live a Long Life You'll Probably Be Senile
BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What causes older people to get senile? What can be done to prevent it?
A—Since senile means elderly, the cause would be long life. If you are referring to senile dementia or Alzheimer's disease which affects some persons who live 50 years or more, heredity plays a part in the cause. A person with a family history of this disease should have a physical check up once or twice a year to detect early signs of diabetes, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and obesity as these conditions are often associated with Alzheimer's disease. The disease progresses slowly but in most cases treatment in a mental hospital eventually becomes necessary.

Q—I am a man, 56. Five years ago I was told I have polycythemia. What is the cause and what is the prognosis?
A—The cause of polycythemia, an increase in the total number of red blood cells in the body, is unknown. If the disease is recognized early in its course and adequately treated, it should not shorten your life but, since there is no cure, the treatment must be continuous.
This is one condition for which the medieval practice of blood letting is of value. A pint of blood can be removed from the victim two or three times a week until the red cell count is normal and about once a month thereafter. Carefully regulated doses of phenylhydrazine or injections of radioactive phosphorus have also been used to maintain a normal blood count.

Q—Is polycythemia a form of cancer of the blood?
A—No. It is in no way related to leukemia.

Q—I have been told that I have no acid in my stomach and have been taking glutamic acid hydrochloride (Acidulin) with each meal. How can I tell whether I am getting enough acid to digest my food properly or too much?
A—A lack of acid in the stomach may be seen in persons with pernicious anemia, cancer of the stomach and various other conditions. Since the acidity of the stomach plays a very minor role in digestion, this is not an important symptom—not one requiring specific treatment. If you have pernicious anemia it is much more important for you to get vitamin B-12 and if you have cancer of the stomach the treatment is surgical removal of the tumor.

NEW DATE—Lynda Bird Johnson turned up at a Washington theater with a new escort. He's John Betar, former White House aide.

THE BORN LOSER

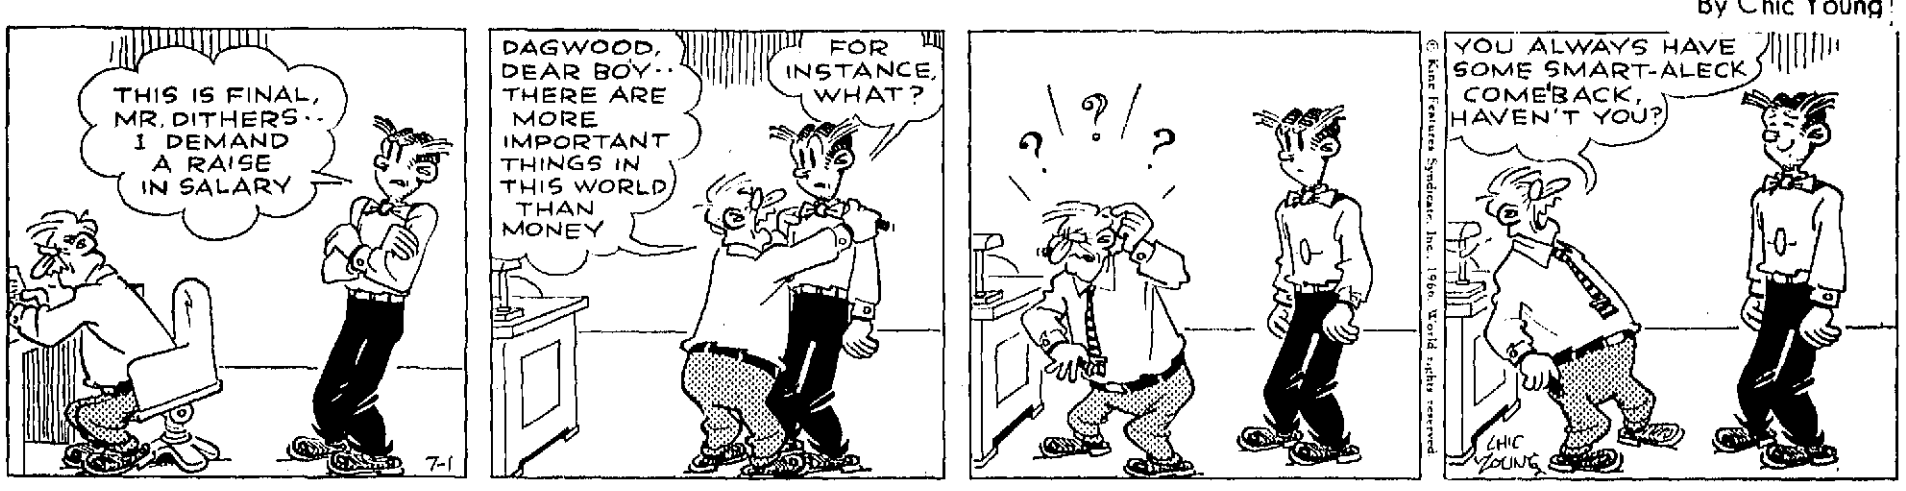

The novelist Zane Grey, whose books of western fiction sold more than 15 million copies, was a practicing dentist. He was born in Zanesville, Ohio. The town was named after his maternal ancestor, Ebenezer Zane, who cleared the land and staked out a claim for the present site of the city in the late 18th century.

If you make a sacrifice bid there is no reason for you to advertise it. West was pretty sure that South would bring home his four-spade contract. He was equally positive that his partner would be set at five clubs and he went out of his way to show it. He thought and thought and when he finally produced the five-club bid you could hardly hear him make it.

North didn't think much of his hand either offensively or defensively. If West had bid a cheerful five clubs or just a normal five clubs North might have passed. South would probably have doubled the five-club bid when it came around to him but we'll never know. He might have gone to five spades and been down one trick.

South opened the king of spades and continued with the ace. North discarded the seven of hearts on that lead and the three of hearts when South continued with the queen.

It was obvious to South that his partner was ready to trump a heart and South was one of those players who want everything they can get. He led the jack of hearts.

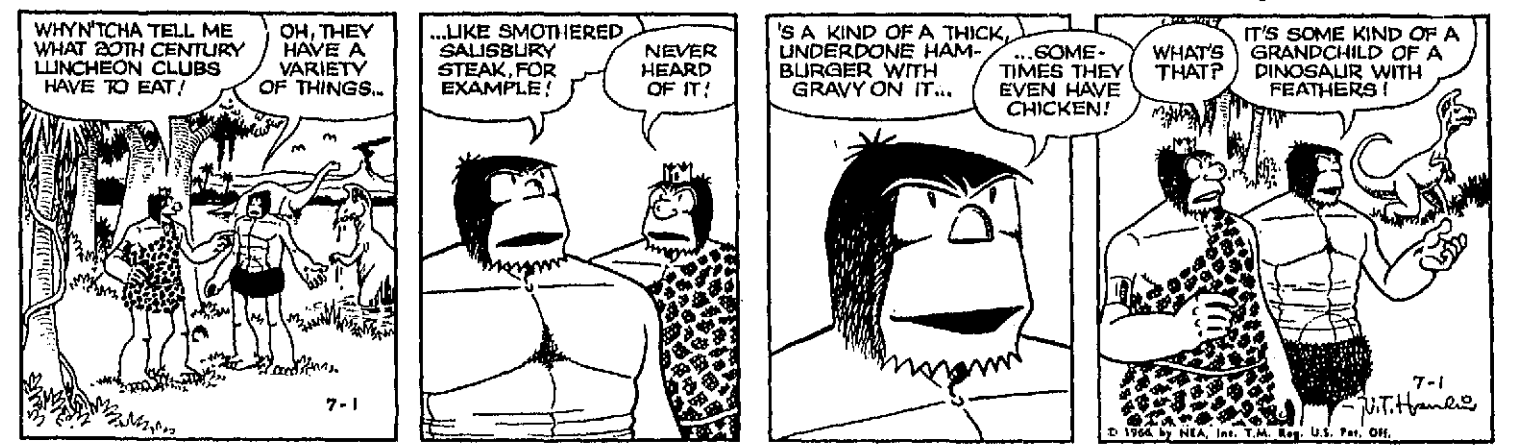

North ruffed and considered. He could cash a diamond and collect a 300-point penalty but why had his partner led the jack of hearts? It had to be a suit preference signal of some sort or other but there was no suit to prefer. North was known to be out of spades and hearts.

South had to be showing the diamond queen. North led a low diamond. South took his queen and gave North an extra ruff.

What Every Manager Needs to Be 'Great'

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Walter Alston leaned back in his chair, let out a long sigh and began scratching the area below his right ear with the forefinger of his right hand.

This is usually what Alston, the dean of major league managers, does when he's been asked a question that can't be answered yes or no.

Alston had just been asked if, in his 13 years as manager of the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, he had any theories on what it takes to be a great manager.

The question should have been phrased some other way.

"Yes," he said, after a 30-second pause.

Well?

Another pause and more scratching.

"Funny, but I have given that question some thought the past year or so. Ordinarily I wouldn't."

(It was learned that Alston has been answering such questions for his biography, which will be published in the fall, hopefully about the time the Dodgers are playing in another World Series.)

Alston continued, "My theory on managing, in the final analysis, is the one I've always had."

Come on, Smokey, what is it?

"Well, to be a great manager you need these things:

"Four pitchers who'll win 20 games.

"Five .300 hitters.

"Two batters who will knock in 150 runs.

"At least three players—preferably a catcher, shortstop and centerfielder—who will field their positions like vacuum cleaners.

"A bench that bats .500.

"And about six guys who run the bases like striped-bottomed apes."

If Alston's Dodger teams have won four world championships, five pennants and finished second three times, all in 12 seasons with far less talent than he says it takes to be a "great" manager, then that must make Alston super-duper great.

"No," he said. "Lucky."

So by this does he mean the manager's job is not very important?

"Not as important as a lot of people make it out to be.

"The most important thing is to get the most out of your players. Then you've got to know something about tactics.

After that there's not much to it."

Said Dodger utility man Jim Gilliam, who played for Alston 15 years ago in the minors at Montreal, "In his own quiet way he demands the best of you. He's fair and he's stern and he doesn't rattle easy."

"The only time I ever saw Walt lose his temper was in Montreal. We were leading the league by eight games and were on an eight-game winning streak. He came in and broke up a chair because we blew a 2-1 game by leaving too many on base."

Alston doesn't like to make predictions. "Talk is cheap," he said. "I just go home after every game and forget everything until the next day."

Of this year's team, Alston said there is general improvement over last year, especially in hitting. He said the key to a pennant is consistency and that the Dodgers are in good shape here because it's hard to hit long losing streaks when the rest of the league is getting Drysdale or Koufax every fourth day.

He continued scratching under his right ear.

IT'S THAT SOUTHERN COOKING

WHAT CAN IT BE that American League umpire Emmett Ashford is talking about that his expression seems so pained? Whatever it is, Washington Senators manager Gil Hodges probably got the point.

IN TOP FORM—The Los Angeles Dodgers' loss to the Houston Astros ended Sandy Koufax's winning streak at eight games, but he's still running neck-and-neck with the San Francisco Giants' Juan Marichal as a top candidate for a 30-win season. The last was hurled by Dizzy Dean in 1934.

Plager's Weighty Problem—Canadian Beer Is Too Good

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There literally are thousands of people—American as well as Canadians—who wish they could change jobs with Bob Plager.

And by mid-September, Bob Plager usually is looking for a deal.

During the winter, Plager is a defenseman for the New York Rangers. During the summer, he is a beer taster for Brewers Retail of Ontario, Canada.

During the fall, at the Rangers training camp, he is an exhausted young man.

"Beer tasting," he says, "is not the ideal off-season job for a hockey player. It's not very hard, you know. You just sit back and . . . well . . . you taste the beer to see if it's stale."

Plager lives in Kapuskasing, Ontario, a hunting and fishing paradise which lures enough sportsmen to populate 36 different resort hotels.

"Those hotels," Plager says, "are in my territory."

"They buy a three-month supply of beer and what I do is check the labels and if it's three months or over since it has been stored, I taste it."

"Sometimes, I check as many as 18 bottles a day. If it's bad I just throw it away."

And if it's good?

"Well," Bob said, smiling, "I just finish the bottle or at least half of it."

"And," he added, "I don't find much stale beer."

Now you can understand why Bob Plager arrives at training camp overweight.

"One year," he says, "I was up to 236 and my playing weight is 190. I worked a little off by playing football before training camp, but I still was too heavy."

Plager has promised the Ranger management that this year will be different.

THE NEW LOOK in Baltimore—besides the hitting of Frank Robinson—includes the pitching of Eddie Watt. A rookie righthander, Watt is only in his second year of pro ball and this season is one of the most effective relievers in the majors.

What a Relief!

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Much is made of the Baltimore's Robinson act—the hitting and fielding of Frank and Brooks.

But manager Hank Bauer says there is another act on his team that has helped considerably to keep Baltimore in and around first place this season.

The act is called Watt and Miller (Eddie and Stu) and their relief pitching has accounted for nearly a quarter of Baltimore's victories this season.

Trouble is, the act may be split up at the end of the year. Only one relief pitcher can win the American League's "Fireman of the Year" award.

Sudden Sam's Psyche

A rookie manager in the majors has picked up a permanent nickname in team counsels: "Shaky". . . . That's because he literally shakes when he bawls any of them out . . . he's easily rattled on the bench . . . and on top of that, his job is shaky. . . .

Around the Cleveland Indians, they think the soreness in his psyche is a lot more serious than the soreness in Sam McDowell's pitching paw. McDowell, with one of the most overpowering fast balls in baseball, persists in pussyfooting soft stuff up to the plate, which gets him in trouble. And even skipper Birdie Tebbetts can't shake him out of it. . . .

Quick responses from Chico Salmon, leading Tribe hitter: "I was scared of ghosts, but I'm not scared any more. Now I'm scared of snakes. In the Army I see snakes every day in Fort Polk, La. Swampy place." . . . Do your teammates tease you with trick snakes? "No, I guess they're scared of snakes, too." . . . Do you still play winter ball, Chico? "Yes, in Panama." . . . Don't you sometimes feel you could use a rest between seasons? "I feel so, but I can't afford the feeling. I don't have that much money." . . .

Bunch of quick takes:

Ex-Dodger pitcher Johnny Podres (now with Detroit): "The Dodgers are a cinch to win the National League pennant. They got it all—the pitching, the speed and score a lot more runs than people think. They also got a real good defensive ball club. Probably most of all they've got a real good manager. . . . I think the National League has more hard throwers, more fast-ball pitchers than you see over here in the American League."

Sonny Siebert, Cleveland's no-hit pitcher: "I told my wife I was going to pitch a no-hitter, more or less as a joke. She was at the ball game. After it, she was more or less too much in shock to say anything."

Leon Wagner, who collided with Larry Brown in a near-tragic baseball accident: "I can't recall the crash. I thought I had jumped up after the collision and was ready to play. I didn't know I had laid out there a few minutes. When I saw a picture of it in the paper, it scared me. I didn't think I was hurt too bad until the next morning in the hospital. Then I found out I had a broken nose. You don't think it would make you gunshy, but I found that on five or six same type of fly balls after that I noticed myself shying away a little bit."

Wagner on how he happens to be called Daddy Wags: "I went to Tuskegee Institute and there was a lot of kids down there I considered square. They had on bib overalls and high-topped shoes. I came down from Detroit and dressed pretty sharp, so most of the country kids started calling me Daddy Wags."

Dennis McLain, Detroit's league-leading pitcher: "I've never been on a soft drink kick like they claim. I've been quoted as drinking 25, 30 bottles a day. I don't. At one time, I drank 15 or 16. Not any more. I found out it's bad for you, I used to drink a lot of Pepsi. (Pause) As a matter of fact, I work for them now."

Norm Cash, who was once drafted by the Chicago Bears: "If I had it to do over, I might go football because of the big bonuses. But I just think you have a longer career in baseball. I love the game. I don't think I'd trade."

Between you'n' me, Mickey Mantle thinks it's a lot easier patrolling center field than left field, as he did last year. "The ball hooks on you over there," he says. . . .
